Broad Coalition Now Impossible — Eshkol

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter
Mr. Levi Eshkol yesterday afternoon told the four party bloc at a meeting in Jerusalem that he saw no basis for further five-cornered coalition talks, and would only continue negotiations on the formation of a Cabinet with the parties separately.

IN these days of nuclear tests, it is good to be reminded that those who serve science may also serve humanity. It is this lesson Nansen's which adds importance to today's CENTENARY to the international commemoration, under the auspices of the United Nations' Commissioner for Refugees, of the centenary of the birth of that great Norwegian, Fridtjof Nansen.

Nansen was one of those amazingly versatile men who, happily for the world, emerge in every generation. Trained as a zoologist, he was also explorer, oceanographer, geologist, historian, artist, athlete and diplomat. He possessed, moreover, a talent for the practical. He designed much of his own equipment for his polar expeditions as well as for his scientific research and the "wind-breaker" jacket which he invented has gone into such universal use that very few remember who first thought of it.

But it was Nansen's great spiritual qualities, his gift of compassion for the suffering and the forlorn and his belief in international cooperation which make his name remembered.

He came back from the arctic lands of adventure to take an active part in his country's political life, and then, appalled by the ravages of the First World War, threw himself into his first humanitarian expedition — to bring help to millions of starving Russians, Greeks and Armenians. When he found that surplus wheat was available in the Americas, but funds lacking to transport it to the famine areas, he travelled all over the world on lecture tours in order to raise the money himself.

Nansen's name is connected with the repatriation of prisoners-of-war and even more closely with activities on behalf of refugees. He became the League of Nations' first High Commissioner for Refugees, an office he held until his death in 1930. For thousands of people, and there are many Jews among them, the name Nansen means not so much an intrepid explorer, a brilliant scientist or a Nobel Peace prize-man, as a piece of paper. To stateless refugees between the world wars, the identity document first issued in 1922 and known to everyone as a Nansen Passport, meant the possibility of beginning a new life.

As we remember Nansen today, we find ourselves wondering what his attitude would have been to the Arab refugee problem. There is perhaps a key to it in a remark he made about his unorthodox polar explorations, for which he was criticized by more conservative colleagues. "I have always thought," he said, "that the much praised 'line of retreat' is a snare for people who wish to reach their goal. Always looking back, they end by getting nowhere."

It is to be hoped that arrangements have been made in Israeli schools for talks on Nansen today. Few have understood as clearly as Nansen the power for good that the spirit of adventure can be. He called it a divine force which "has driven man forward on the path of development; and so long as human ear follows the breaking of waves over deep seas, so long as human eye follows the course of the northern lights over silent snow-lands, so long as human thought seeks distant globes in the infinite space, so will the sense of adventure into the unknown lead the human mind forward and upward." Our young people may not have such vast perspectives before them, since ours is a small and well explored country. But an appeal to the spirit of adventure should not be forgotten. In all Zionism, as in all pioneering, this element has been prominent and valuable. It is, at the very least, closer to the spirit of the seeker after truth than to that of the self-speaker.

It was generally considered most likely that a coalition of Mapai with the National Religious, Poalei Aguda and Liberal parties would emerge. Later in the evening, Mr. Eshkol reported on the latest developments to President Ben-Zvi at Beit Hanassi.

At the afternoon meeting, the Mapai representatives rejected the compromise proposal of Mr. Haim Moshe Shapiro, of the National Religious Party, which would give Mapai a conditional cabinet majority. The proposal was also rejected by Mapai and Abud Ha'avoda. The Liberals had rejected the proposal last Friday.

The four-party bloc scheduled another meeting for today, which may be its last for the time being. Following yesterday's meeting, Mr. Bar Yehuda, of Abud Ha'avoda, told the press that the four-party bloc could not function as a coalition with Herut as cooperation with Herut was excluded, and that its usefulness had come to an end.

Report circulated that Mapai, as well as Abud Ha'avoda, were reconsidering the possibility of joining a small coalition in which Mapai would have a decisive majority, but the likelihood of such a government was not great.

At yesterday's meeting, negotiations for a broadly based coalition were admitted to have reached a dead end. Mr. Yehor Harsati, of the Liberals, was reported to have told the meeting his party considered it essential that a government be formed even if, unhappily, it meant a narrow coalition. He denied reports that the Liberal Party had already decided to join the government.

Following his meeting with President Ben-Zvi last night, Mr. Eshkol told newsmen he had been doubtful from the start whether the five-party discussions could be successful, and had said so to all the parties in informal discussions throughout the period of negotiation. He hoped that a coalition could now be formed within a matter of days.

Spokesmen for the two left parties emphasized yesterday that there was no question of their joining a coalition with Herut. They appeared unwilling until the last moment to concede that the four-party bloc could not function as a coalition with Herut as cooperation with Herut was excluded, and that its usefulness had come to an end.

Soviet Ambassador to Holland In Scrap Over Defector's Wife

AMSTERDAM (AP). — Dutch Premier Jan de Quay yesterday summoned the Soviet Ambassador to The Hague to discuss the fate of a Soviet woman tourist who touched off an international fracas at Schiphol Airport, here.

The woman, Mrs. Alexei Golub, decided last night, after a talk with her husband, who had defected to Russia, to return to Russia. She was then escorted to a Soviet plane after having spent eight hours at the airport.

The Ambassador, Mr. Panteleimon Ponomarev, was at the airport with Mrs. Golub when the Premier's message arrived. Stepping into his limousine, he showed newsmen a button which he said was torn from his raincoat in a fist fight with Dutch airport police earlier in the day.

The fight broke out when Dutch police feared Mrs. Golub was being returned to the Soviet Union against her will, and they refused to surrender her passport to Soviet officials.

Several Soviet Embassy men, including the Ambassador, invaded the airport police office, demanding her passport. A fist-fight broke out.

Soviets Insist on 'Troika' OFFERS TALKS WITH ARABS

UNITED NATIONS. — The Soviet Union opened a full-scale attack yesterday on the U.N. Secretariat, the mounting U.N. budget and the location of the world organization's headquarters in New York.

It called for urgent reorganization of the Secretariat on the "troika" principle. Mr. Alexei Roshchin, the Soviet delegate in the General Assembly's Administrative and Budgetary Committee, outlined Moscow's policy on the U.N. structure at a time when many delegates have been complaining about mounting costs and when African delegates in particular are bitter about racial discrimination in New York City.

"The racial discrimination practiced in the U.S. creates intolerable conditions for the work of the U.N. in New York," he said. "The unfavourable conditions for a correspondent who made a training cruise in an atomic submarine said erroneous views on the role of submarines had 'even been held by our military circles'."

"Investia" indicated Marshal Georgi Zhukov was dismissed as Defence Minister November 3, 1957 for opposing the construction of these atomic subs. It said Premier Khrushchev made the decision to go ahead with building them and that he is known to Soviet sailors as "the father of the atomic fleet which today guards our Soviet state."

Maudling Colonial Chief In British Cabinet Reshuffle

LONDON (Reuters). — Mr. Reginald Maudling becomes Britain's new Colonial Secretary in a government reshuffle announced yesterday by Mr. Harold Macmillan. He succeeds Mr. Iain Macleod.

Mr. Maudling becomes Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, a non-departmental Cabinet portfolio. He will take on special assignments and will also be leader of the Commons and has been invited to become chairman of the Conservative Party in succession to Mr. R.A. Butler.

The Conservative Party conference opens today. Mr. Charles Hill, former Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, goes to the Ministry of Housing and Local Government, a post held till now by Mr. Henry Brooke. Dr. Hill, who was in charge of Government Information, has just completed a visit to Israel.

Mr. Henry Brooke remains in the Cabinet in the post of Paymaster-General and as Chief Secretary to the Treasury, a new post.

Mr. F.J. Erroll, newcomer to the Cabinet and former Minister of State at the Board of Trade, succeeds Mr. Maudling as President of the Board of Trade.

Lord Mills, formerly Paymaster-General, becomes Minister without Portfolio, a post formerly held by the Earl of Dundee, who now becomes Minister of State at the Foreign Office.

Sir Keith Joseph, formerly Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Housing and Local Government, succeeds Mr. Erroll as Minister of State, Board of Trade.

At the Prime Minister's request, Mr. Butler, who continues as Home Secretary and unofficially deputy to Mr. Macmillan, will give him special assistance over a wide field of public duties. In particular he will lead the ministerial group in charge of negotiations in Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Mr. Brooke's new appointment means that for the first time the Treasury will have two Cabinet ministers — Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, Chancellor of the Exchequer, as senior, and Mr. Brooke, as junior. Mr. Brooke is dropped from the cabinet as a result of the changes, which increase the membership from 20 to 21.

Independence For Uganda Next Year
LONDON (AP). — The British Government announced yesterday that the territory would have internal self-government on March 1 next year and independence on October 9. Elections under the new constitution will be held some time between these two dates, probably in April or May.

Mr. Benedict Kiwanuka, Chief Minister of the present Uganda Government, said he had wanted independence since January 1, 1962 for internal autonomy and full independence by July or August, but had agreed to a compromise.

Cease-Fire Talks Reopen in Katanga

ELIZABETHTOWN. — Katanga cease-fire talks reopened yesterday, with the question of a meeting between Katanga's leader, Moise Tshombe, and the Congolese Central Government one of its central issues.

Tunisia's Mahmoud Khari, chief U.N. delegate at the cease-fire talks, returned from Leopoldville during the week-end with a message from the Congolese Premier, Mr. Cyrille Adoula, according to Mr. Khari, believes the U.N. promise of protection should be sufficient.

But Tshombe is demanding the protection of his powers before he makes the trip. Premier Adoula, according to Mr. Khari, believes the U.N. promise of protection should be sufficient.

Rayburn Comfortable After '5-Fluoro-Uracil'
DALLAS, Texas (Reuters). — Mr. Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, who is being treated here for inoperable cancer with a new drug, was comfortable yesterday to be comfortable. A hospital bulletin added: "A few minutes ago he was sitting up in bed having his breakfast."

Mr. Rayburn on Sunday received the first injection of an experimental drug known as "5-fluoro-uracil." If all goes well, he will have daily injections for about a fortnight.

The President has also said he wants to renew negotiations with the nationalists, which have broken down twice this year.

Russia Claims Best A-Subs

MOSCOW (AP). — The Soviet Union yesterday claimed it now had the world's fastest fleet of atomic submarines and that this fleet could beat that of any other country in underwater battle.

It said the new submarines armed with long-range nuclear rockets cruised at speeds much higher than those of crack North Atlantic liners, such as the United States or the Queen Elizabeth.

An article in "Investia" by a correspondent who made a training cruise in an atomic submarine said erroneous views on the role of submarines had "even been held by our military circles."

"Investia" indicated Marshal Georgi Zhukov was dismissed as Defence Minister November 3, 1957 for opposing the construction of these atomic subs. Syria Applies To Resume UN Seat

UNITED NATIONS (RHA). — Mrs. Golda Meir said yesterday that the U.N. should start the job of attaining general and complete disarmament by using the Middle East "as a pilot project for the solution of the overall problem."

She said Israel was ready to enter a new aggression pact with the Arab states. The Israeli Foreign Minister was delivering her delegation's major foreign policy address in the General Assembly's general debate.

In the course of her 90-minute speech, Mrs. Meir said: "If this assembly will succeed in dedicating itself to the universal and total implementation of the principle of negotiation, then, indeed, it will be a historic assembly."

All issues, including those dividing the Arab States from Israel, can be settled by negotiation, she asserted, and expressed Israel's readiness and willingness to negotiate with the Arab States on every issue at dispute between them.

Israel believes that negotiation is the only alternative to war, she said. "No Arab issue can be solved without negotiation. Every one of the issues can be solved by negotiation. For our part, we remain ready to negotiate at any time or place with any Arab leader and without prior conditions in order to settle the differences between us."

Pending the willingness of the Arab Governments to conclude a final peace settlement, Mrs. Meir continued, there are steps that could be taken to relax tensions, allay mutual fear and pave the road to peace.

These include "An Arab-Israeli non-aggression pact, the parties to which would undertake to respect each other's territorial integrity and political independence, to refrain from all hostile acts of a military, economic or political character, to settle all existing and future differences by peaceful means and to cause incitement and inflammatory propaganda."

Mrs. Meir referred to the recent border incidents, in which five Israeli Arabs were killed while trying to cross illegally into the Gaza Strip, as "another regrettable result of the border warfare which is part of the belligerence practiced by the Arab States against Israel."

As to the Arab population inside Israel, she said "We (Continued on Page 2 — Col. 2)

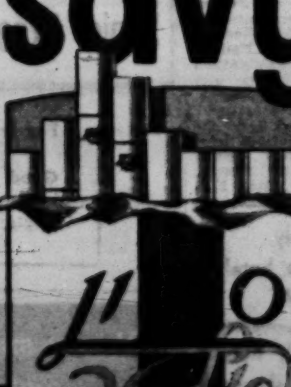

JORDAN: NASSERISM BLOCKS ARAB UNION
AMMAN (Reuters). — Premier Bahjat Talhouni said yesterday that unity between Syria and Egypt failed because freedom, dignity and public opinion were not respected.

Answering press questions here, Premier Talhouni said an Arab Federal Union would not succeed until the Arabs "cooperate with confidence and cleanse the Arab atmosphere from the poisons and hatred spread by Nasserism," which would need time and effort.

Commercial air services between Amman and Cairo were suspended last Wednesday following Nasser's announcement that diplomatic relations between Egypt and Jordan would be cut.

PRIZE OFFERED FOR ESSAY ON NANSEN
The Foreign Ministry has announced the establishment of a 12,000 prize for the best work on "The Contribution of Fridtjof Nansen to the Solution of Refugee Problems."

This world today is marking the centenary of the birth of Nansen — explorer, zoologist, oceanographer, the League of Nations' first High Commissioner for Refugees, and winner of the 1922 Nobel Peace Prize. (See Leader P. 1, Article Page 1)

U.S. Pushing For Talks with Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. hopes to persuade its allies in the next two or three weeks to proceed with further exploratory talks with Russia on the possibility of negotiating a compromise settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Western consultations are expected to move forward on several fronts including discussions among State Department officials and the Ambassadors of Britain, France and West Germany.

The Allies appear to be basically split over Berlin policy.

The West German Government is apprehensive over agreeing to the greater flexibility of the Western side which U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and President Kennedy want for negotiations with Russia.

The French Government is fearful that Russia may consider Western interest in exploratory talks a sign of weakness.

The British Government is eager for negotiations and British officials have been ready to be more flexible than a reasonable formula can be worked out with Russia.

Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Rusk are said to feel that at the least it is extremely important to continue East-West exploratory talks. The first round of such talks ended here on Friday night in a two-hour session.

The President and Mr. Rusk held with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. It was the fourth of a series of U.S.-Soviet conversations which began between Mr. Rusk and Mr. Gromyko in New York three weeks ago. The result of the talks is to be a formula for negotiations.

Norway Not to Allow Nuclear Weapons
OSLO (AP) — Norway yesterday confirmed its adherence to the Western Alliance and intention to strengthen its defenses, but without permitting nuclear weapons to be stationed on its soil.

In his speech from the throne at the opening of the 100th regular session of the Storting, King Olav confirmed that Norway's foreign and defense policies will in no way be changed after the September 11 election when the Socialist Government lost its majority while still remaining the largest party.

The King stated that the uncertainty of the international situation has confirmed the necessity of cooperation with the Western Alliance to guard the security of the member countries and to ensure peace.

Mrs. Ethel Agron, widow of the late Mayor of Jerusalem, places the first trowel cement on the cornerstone for Beit Agron, which will rise on a plot overlooking Gan Atzmaut. Her son, Mr. Danny Agron, is standing directly behind her; and Mr. Yehuda Tamir, her daughter, is standing to the right of Mayor Mordecai Ish-Shalom.

Beit Agron 'Expression Of G.A.'s Two Abiding Interests'

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Beit Agron, the future home for journalists and men of letters in the Capital, will give expression and fulfillment to the two interests which dominated the life of the late Gershon Agron — his love of journalism

He praised the late Mayor as an outstanding journalist whose "pure" newspaper served his city, his people and humanity.

Referring to the late Mayor and founder of The Palestine Post (now The Jerusalem Post) as the "unforgettable Gershon Agron," the speaker noted that he had been "one of the pioneers of journalism" in this country.

A Journalist to End

As Mayor, he was deeply imbued with the city's ancient glories and traditions, yet he never lost sight of the needs of a modern city. "He visualized the future of Jerusalem as a living, growing city, and he planned for it."

It was fitting that Beit Agron should rise near the Nahlat Shiva quarter—the oldest quarter outside the walls of the Old City—for could "lean on the past while turning its eyes to the future."

Colleague, Mentor, Friend

Mayor Mordecai Ish-Shalom — who called the late Mayor, colleague, mentor and friend — said that the two

"Agron was taken from us at the height of his powers, when he was alert, stimulating, and immersed his plans and projects for building Jerusalem.

"His ability to adapt himself to new conditions surprised all of us," Mayor Ish-Shalom said, referring to Gershon Agron's work in the Municipality. He added that the late Mayor never spared to October, 20, 1932, when 21 persons met at a conference in Amsterdam. Today, he said, membership is still growing fast.

The Chairman of the Israel Youth Hostels Association, Mr. Haim Krongold, who presided, said the purpose of the

Those who had the privilege of being a friend of Gershon Agron were doubly honoured. Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion wrote in a letter.

$30,000 Missing from Paris Office of Keren Hayesod

Jerusalem Post Reporter
An investigation has been launched into the alleged misappropriation of about $30,000 of Keren Hayesod-United Israel Appeal funds by the former Director of the Keren Hayesod Paris Office, Mr. Ephraim Margalit.
